

Edouard Machery (University of Pittsburgh)

Title: The Amodal Brain

Abstract: In this talk, I argue that our concepts are amodal. I first clarify the terms of the debate and identify some issues with resolving it. I criticize the evidence for the claim that concepts are perceptual representations, and I review the behavioral, neuroscientific and neuropsychological evidence in support of the claim that concepts are amodal.